What is Teen Dating Violence?

A pattern of physically, sexually, verbally, and/or emotionally abusive behavior in a dating relationship. Dating violence takes many forms. It ranges from:

- punching, slapping, pushing, grabbing
- rape and murder
- threats of violence, verbal attacks, and other forms of intimidation
- extreme jealousy, possessiveness and controlling behavior
What is Dating Violence continued

- A pattern of abusive behaviors that over time causes harm and/or fear.
- Use of emotional manipulation and/or physical domination to gain control and power over his or her partner.
- Does not discriminate. It affects people of all races, religions, cultures, classes, same sex as well as heterosexual relationships.
A healthy relationship is based on equality and mutual respect. Each partner’s growth and wellbeing is nurtured in an environment of personal safety and emotional support.

Power in a healthy relationship is balanced. While there may be conflict, there is no fear, no threats, and no violence. Healthy partners actively respect each other’s rights.

- Making the person feel guilty about leaving the relationship, Threatening to commit suicide, Threatening to expose personal information about the person, Threatening family or friends.
Cycle of Violence – Phase 1

- Tension Building - Things start to get tense between the two people. In this phase:
  - There is arguing a lot, the abuser yells at the target for no reason
  - The abuser may make false accusations about the target,
  - The target feels he or she can’t do anything right, the atmosphere is tense, as if things could blow up at any moment.
Cycle of Violence – Phase 2

Explosion - The tension is released in a burst of physical, sexual, and/or verbal/emotional abuse. The abuser may:

- Scream and yell in a way that is frightening and/or humiliating.
- Hit, grab, shove, kick, slam the target against the wall, etc. Throw objects. Threaten to hurt the target.
- Assault the target or force him or her to do things the target does not want to do.
Cycle of Violence – Phase 3

- Romance Period - The abuser tries to make the target stay in the relationship by apologizing and/or trying to shift the blame onto someone or something else, like drugs, alcohol, or stress. The abuser may:
  - Apologize and promise the abuse will never happen again.
  - Say “I love you.”
  - Buy the target flowers and gifts.
  - Be very loving and apologetic to the target.
  - Accuse the target of actually causing the abuse.
Why is recognizing abuse important?

- Females between the ages of 16 and 24 experience the highest rates of intimate partner violence.¹
  - 1 in 5 high school girls is physically or sexually hurt by a dating partner.² As many as one-third of teens experience some kind of abuse in their romantic relationships, including verbal and emotional abuse.³
  - 1 in 3 teens reports knowing a friend or peer who has been hit, punched, kicked, slapped or physically hurt by a partner. 45 percent of teen girls know someone who has been pressured or forced into having intercourse or oral sex.⁴
Why is recognizing abuse important?

- The vast majority of teens consider verbal and physical abuse to be serious issues in their age group.\(^5\)
- Only 33 percent of teens who have been in or known about an abusive dating relationship report having told anyone about it.\(^6\)
- Adolescent males – as well as females – experience dating violence.

- Drug abuse, alcohol evaluation and counseling
- Psychological evaluation and treatment
- Parenting class
- No residential confinement unless finding by court that offender is not likely to pose a threat to the victim
What Can Friends Do?

- Listen calmly and take the concern seriously
- Reassure you friend that nobody deserves to be abused
- Suggest talking to a trusted adult – counselor, teacher, family member and/or call a community agency for advice
- Realize the situation will not change overnight
6 Things to say to a Friend

- I am afraid for your safety.
- I am afraid for the safety of your friends and family
- It will only get worse.
- I am here for you.
- You don’t deserve to be abused.
- It is not your fault.
Ideas For Prevention

- Become more aware of verbal and physical abuse in your own relationships
- Help fellow students “break the silence”
- Promote other ways to deal with anger and conflict resolution
- Beware of jokes, movies, TV programs, advertising, and music that are demeaning to women and may promote violence against women
Reaching Out - What To Expect

When you contact an agency for help, these are some of the things they will be able to do to try to help you.

- listen to your problem
- answer your questions
- connect you to police
- discuss safety planning
- provide you with a 911-only cell phone
- inform you about the protection order procedure
- offer you shelter if needed
- give you a referral to another agency if they can’t help
