

An Innovative and Philanthropic Mental Health Practice

Hi Mike,

The following is my proposal for your review.

In this hourlong course entitled “Emotional (non)Functioning and How it Can Impair Practice: A Mental Wellness Primer” I will explain the basic neurological function of human beings’ 10 discrete emotions, their adaptive purpose for survival, and how this information can be utilized by professionals. The information is drawn heavily from the work of Carroll Izard and Christian Conte, along with some references to other authors and researchers.

An augmented, nine-part video series of the content can be viewed at the Zephyr Wellness website under the media section entitled Emotional Functioning. It will be available in handout form for all participants at the conclusion of the presentation.

This is a quarter-hour breakdown of the content for CLE purposes with the State Bar.

Hours 0.0 - 0.25: Overview of feeling versus thinking; fundamentals of neuroscience

Hours 0.25 - 0.50: The 10 Core Emotions, plus anthropological history

Hours 0.50 - 0.75: Validation, problem solving, and various trauma frameworks

Hours 0.75 - 1.0: Everyday application including substance abuse; Q&A

My speaking fee for local (within 60 miles) engagements up to two hours is $1000 and I cover all travel costs and accommodations. Thank you for your interest.

Hi Michael,

This course is frequently presented at AG's offices and is geared toward consumer protection agents slightly more than prosecutors. But should work well and can be modified for the expected attendees being prosecutors.

Agenda

1. Consumer protection and deceptive pet sales
 - a. Puppy mill to pet store channel – root causes of the consumer protection problem
 - b. Misrepresentations made to sell dogs, at pet stores and online, violations of state consumer protection act
 - c. Deceptive financing options, with high interest rates; pet leasing
 - d. CDC investigations of pet store puppies infected with Campylobacter, making people ill
 - e. State pet purchase protection law (if applicable) – enforcement considerations and limitations
2. Summary of findings in X state
 - a. Legal framework for pet stores and breeders – “pet vendors” licensed by the state and relevant laws
 - b. Review of state records
 - c. Summary of complaints sent to Humane World
3. Recommendations and next steps
 - a. Review of information and tips that the office can share with the public
 1. Additional alerts
 2. Dedicated page on website
 3. Email for reporting scams
 - b. Review of information that the office can share internally
 - c. Ideas for Humane World to assist OAG in stopping consumer fraud

Thank you,

Nicole

Law Enforcement Training Center course menu

Humane World for Animals' Law Enforcement Training Center provides free trainings to thousands of law enforcement officers and prosecutors across the country each year. Trainers are current or former law enforcement and leading experts in the field of animal crimes.

Animal cruelty and fighting investigations

This training reviews illegal animal abuse, including investigatory techniques, applicable state and federal laws and tips for successful outcomes.

Topics to be covered:

- Considerations for assessing potential violations and different solutions/remedies
- The link between animal abuse and other violent crime
- Report writing and warrants
- Recognizing and collecting relevant evidence
- Interpreting and applying cruelty and fighting laws

Equine investigations

This course covers equine care and husbandry, relevant state and federal laws, and investigative techniques.

Topics to be covered:

- Standards of care and how to assess physical and living conditions
- Common conditions and potential causes
- Investigating reports, unique considerations
- Basic handling
- Preparing for and executing a seizure

Farm animal investigations

This course covers farm animal care and husbandry, relevant state and federal laws, and investigative techniques.

Topics to be covered:

- Standards of care and how to assess physical and living conditions
- Common conditions, potential causes, and basic disease information
- Interviews, warrants, and evidence collection
- Ongoing care, resources, and case management

Police/dog encounters

Dogs are likely to be present during many calls for service. With a focus on officer safety, this course reviews how agencies can prepare to avoid unnecessarily shooting a family pet.

Topics to be covered:

- How animal encounters impact an agency
- Contributing factors to negative interactions
- Reading body language and how to appropriately approach dogs
- Preparedness and relationship building

Family violence and animal cruelty: how prosecuting animal abuse can save lives

There is a significant correlation between intimate partner violence and violence against animals. Victims will often refuse to leave out of fear that their beloved pet would be harmed, and not having a safe place that will shelter them both. Largely because of this important link, The National Sheriffs' Association formed an animal cruelty committee, and acts of animal abuse are now tracked alongside felony crimes like arson, assault, and homicide in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's criminal database.

Topics to be covered:

- Animal abuse as an indicator for future violence
- Connection between intimate partner violence and animal crimes
- Interagency collaboration for safer communities

Veterinary forensics in animal investigations

Veterinary forensics can play an important role in both animal and human crimes. Topics for this course include recognizing critical evidence and applying human-forensics techniques.

Topics to be covered:

- Crime scene analysis and documentation
- Evidence recognition - animal vs. human cases
- Crime scene considerations for different types of cruelty

Advanced animal fighting investigations

This course includes the relationship between animal fighting and other violent criminal activity, relevant state and federal laws, a thorough review of key components and investigative techniques for both dog and cockfighting, warrants, evidence collection, and prosecution preparation.

Topics to be covered:

- Advanced review of dogfighting, cockfighting and their link to other violent crime
- Important terminology, paraphernalia, aspects of a fight
- Recognizing and documenting key evidence and preparing for prosecution

Advanced animal cruelty investigations

Building upon lessons learned in the daylong course, this training will provide an in-depth discussion of some of the more unique and challenging animal crimes. The course will also review advanced techniques for evidence collection, including writing effective warrants and utilizing social media.

Topics to be covered:

- Specialized cases to include: commercial breeders, rituals/sacrifice, horse tripping, horse soring, wildlife cruelty, animal sexual abuse
- Advanced evidence collection: warrants/reports, photo documentation, internet research, 4th amendment issues

Large-scale neglect investigations

This presentation will cover the most common types of large-scale cases and tips for successful investigations and seizures. This workshop will discuss the need to plan ahead, evidence collection, handling, transport, ongoing care, and unique considerations for seizures involving significant number of animals.

Topics to be covered:

- Evidence collection/documentation of a significant number of animals
- Handling, transport and sheltering live evidence
- Logistical challenges of large-scale investigations and seizures
- Case management challenges and the importance of collaboration and preparedness

Commercial breeding facility investigations

Violations of animal cruelty law are often found at large-scale commercial breeding facilities, commonly referred to as "puppy mills." The sheer number of animals involved—often in the hundreds and sometimes thousands—and their unique circumstances create special investigation and case management challenges.

Topics to be covered:

- Specialized considerations
- Different enforcement/regulatory agencies and their oversight
- Collaboration and preparedness

Pet store investigations

When pet stores sell animals and fail to provide proper care, enforcement agencies are likely to receive calls for service to these locations. This course will discuss the various regulations and laws that impact animal-selling retail stores, proactive approaches to mitigating harm to buyers, considerations for assessing violations of law, and the importance of holding individuals accountable for the care of animals they sell.

Topics to be covered:

- Common calls for service and reports
- Animal sourcing, challenges with enforcement oversight
- Identifying and preparing for a seizure
- Alternative methods of enforcement, evidence collection, and resources

Animal crimes investigations and the 4th amendment

"Fruit of the poisonous tree" is a legal metaphor for a concept with significant implications for animal services and enforcement officers. This course will review the critical importance of the 4th amendment in animal-related investigations.

Topics to be covered:

- Documenting critical evidence in accordance with the 4th amendment
- Tips for assessing exigency and urgency
- Considerations for deciding the best course of action for a successful case outcome

Testifying about animal crimes

Testifying about animal crimes cases present a unique set of challenges for law enforcement officers. Approaching these cases from both the perspective of the prosecutor and the officer, this workshop will review tips for preparing for trials involving animal victims.

Topics to be covered:

- Special considerations for cases related to intimate partner violence
- How to effectively work with witnesses and utilizing experts
- Effectively navigating cross-examination

Community policing and animal protection

Animals can play a critical role in fostering trust between law enforcement and the communities they serve. Building upon fundamental concepts of a community-oriented policing model, this course will review relevant applications in animal protection, including tips for positive interactions, creative community partnerships and dynamic problem solving in the field.

Topics to be covered:

- Fundamentals for a successful community-centric program
- Tips for funding and resource acquisition
- Ways to establish or expand existing programs

Community engagement and de-escalation

Animal service professionals are often the first to arrive at emergencies and have regular contact with the public. De-escalation is not a new concept in policing, but the movement towards proactive community engagement has revealed important lessons for enhancing interactions with our constituencies. Practicing de-escalation is not only a powerful tactical tool but importantly, it is an investment in the communities we serve.

Topics to be covered:

- Shifting from a "warrior" to a "guardian" mindset
- Mindfulness around verbal and non-verbal cues
- Tips for incorporating cultural competency into our daily interactions

Community cats and animal control officers

What is the role of animal care and control agencies in managing community cats? This course will describe how officers in the field can engage in trap-neuter-return, mitigate conflicts, and ensure the safety and welfare of both the animals and the public.

Topics to be covered:

- Background on community cats and role of animal services, and responding to community cat complaints
- Creating laws and policies that support your community cat program
- Community engagement and mitigating complaints

Not here, kitty kitty

Removing cats to solve a neighbor complaint is not the most effective resolution to the problem. A variety of tools are available to encourage cats to stay away from where they are not wanted. Approaching the issue from the cat's perspective can ensure the safety and welfare of both the animals and the public.

Topics to be covered:

- Community cat behaviors
- TNR programs focused on colony depopulation
- How/when to use cat deterrent

In it for the long haul: combatting compassion fatigue and enhancing resiliency

The animal protection field is both incredibly rewarding and challenging. This course will discuss the causes and symptoms of compassion fatigue and provide a suite of skills for building and maintaining a healthy and intentional culture of skillful communication, openness, and personal responsibility.

Topics to be covered:

- A shared language and understanding of the causes and symptoms of compassion fatigue
- Skills that can be used to build and maintain a healthy and intentional culture
- Communication, openness, and personal responsibility related to compassion fatigue

Trauma-informed sheltering: rehabilitating rescued animals using a holistic approach

From sensory deprived puppy mill survivors to large-scale neglect survivors with significant medical issues, to victims of dogfighting who have endured horrendous abuse, animals in HWFA's care typically have profound trauma. This course will discuss a reimagined approach to caring for seized animals.

Topics to be covered:

- Identifying unique types of trauma
- Creative ways to effectively shelter and treat traumatized animals

Mike --

Thanks for reaching out. I've known Bob for a long time and he's one of the best people I know. I've taught both of those topics for many years now.

In particular, I teach a "Visual Trial Skills" course every three months. This is a one-day, hands-on training where we go through PowerPoint and show them how to create visually-appealing presentations for their trials (openings, closings, etc.). We've had really positive feedback on the course. However, I don't think this would be very effective for large groups. I only mention it to let you know my background a little bit. That being said, I have also done a "Visual Trial Skills Primer" presentation where I go over the importance of using visuals in trials and give a bunch of tips, suggestions, and advice for how to make trials more visually appealing. This has also had very positive feedback. In fact, I'll be flying out to Arizona next month to present on this topic at their prosecutor conference and may be of interest to you.

I have also taught "Analytical Advocacy" (which I've renamed to "Strategic Advocacy") for several years now. It is a model that we use in my office that has been incredibly effective. I discuss the two types of defenses and how to prepare for them, how to develop a theme using human values, turning case weaknesses into strengths, effectively using openings and closing/rebuttal, and how to connect with the jury on a subliminal/psychological level.

I'm more than happy to give you a preview of the presentations, if that would be helpful. As luck would have it, I am available on September 10-12, so if you're interested, I think I can make that work.

Let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Good afternoon Blair,

My name is Mike Morton, and I serve as Executive Director of the Nevada Advisory Council for Prosecuting Attorneys (NVPAC). I received your name and info from a resource/speaker bank that the National Association of Prosecutor Coordinators keeps.

The NVPAC hosts an annual conference which is attended by state and local prosecutors throughout Nevada to promote best practices in prosecutions and to earn CLE credit. You come highly recommended by Bob Church for your presentations, "Visual Trial Skills" and "Analytical Advocacy." I'm definitely interested in learning more about both of these presentations, as well as if you would be interested in speaking at the 2025 conference, taking place September 10-12, 2025 at Lake Tahoe.

I've attached the agenda from the 2024 conference for your reference. If you are interested, please share any additional information you have on those two presentations. I look forward to hearing from you.

Thanks,

Mike

Mike, just a quick follow up so that you're in the loop.

This afternoon I'll be talking to Jen and sharing your objectives and what you're looking to achieve there. I think you're spot on. I spent four years of my career working as a traffic investigator doing vehicular homicides, impaired driving cases and was a DRE back in the early days of the program. Subject is near and dear to my heart.

Once I have my conversation with her, I'll reconnect with you and back brief you. As to your question on financing, if my chain of command blesses Jen coming to your conference, I will pay her travel expenses (Air, Ground, Lodging and a modest per diem) out of my budget. How does that sound to you?

In the past, some of our speakers have requested an honorarium to some degree since they must take leave time from work. We've always treated that as a private agreement between the speaker and the host. But I always make sure the host knows that I will cover the bulk of what the honorarium typically is used for.

Let me know if you have any questions in the interim.

I'll reconnect with you as soon as I talk with Jen.

Hope you had a pleasant weekend, buddy

Hi Dale,

Thanks for getting back to me so quickly.

I'd be looking to fill either an hour or an hour and a half on my agenda. For learning objectives, the conference is looking for a CLE presentation on common pitfalls and how to overcome them when it comes to impaired driving cases related to marijuana, generally. I'd be very interested to know what NMI/Jennifer may have already done in this space. Lastly, we have anywhere from 125-150 prosecutors attend this annual conference.

One question I have on my end is the cost of having a speaker come out to the conference. I'm sure you have heard this before, but my Legislature provides me a very small budget to host this conference.

Thanks,
Mike

Michael,

Good afternoon, sir I hope this finds you well.

Following up on your request for a speaker for September 10–12.

The short answer to your question is yes we do have a resource that would be a very good fit for your Conference.

She is the Traffic Safety Resource Prosecutor for the state of Illinois, Jennifer Cifaldi. I would be more than glad to reach out to her and see if she is available during that time slot. She is a wonderful speaker, a wealth of knowledge and engages with an audience very well. And ... she's is just a wonderful person.

Just to be ahead of things on logistics & Jen's questions:

- How much time are you looking for her to fill on your agenda?
- What are your specific training goals / objectives that you would like to see come from her session?
- Also, an estimate on the number of attendees that will be present.

Looking forward to following up w/you soon, I will be watching for your email.
